

Greg Shaw

Chancellor, I have the pleasure of presenting Professor Greg Shaw with the title of Emeritus Professor of the University.

Professor Shaw has over 33 years' experience working in Australian universities. At Charles Darwin University he taught, researched and provided leadership from 1989 to 2022, including as Head of the School of Education and inaugural Dean of the College of Education. He taught and provided leadership at Batchelor Institute in 1988 and was Deputy Director there from 2009 to 2010.

He contributes to education in China as Adjunct Professor in two Chinese institutions and with UNESCO, working on numerous projects. Over the last 12 years, he has contributed to many national projects advancing online teacher professional development in Indonesia. He is also an advisor for UNESCO Bangkok in online courses in inclusive education.

Professor Shaw's interest in international education was established while working and studying in Papua New Guinea, and strengthened through completing his Masters and PhD at Deakin University.

Professor Shaw began his career as a secondary agriculture science teacher. He has worked in primary, secondary and vocational education, community development, higher education and as an international consultant in education and professional development.

His interests are wide-ranging and include ICT in education, agricultural education, technology and science education, professional development, adult education, distance education and online learning, rural education, developmental education, and Indigenous and cross-cultural education.

Professor Shaw is highly regarded. Professor Giselle Byrnes, the Provost at Massey University in New Zealand, and former Pro Vice-Chancellor of the Faculty of Law, Education, Business and Arts at CDU has said:

“During the time I worked with Greg he was a trusted confidante and colleague who has a genuine passion for education, for research-led teaching and most importantly, the ability to generously ‘pay this forward’ to others, including early career researchers and international students.”

Professor Shaw is a strong advocate of CDU and its community, and he actively raises funds and contributes to student well-being projects.

Despite retiring in 2022 others still benefit from his expertise as he volunteers his time to tutor postgraduate students at CDU to advance education research. Professor Shaw still teaches, publishes and edits journals and books, further contributing to the rapidly changing education landscape.

Chancellor,

I have the pleasure of presenting Greg Shaw with the title of Emeritus Professor in recognition of his outstanding contribution to the development of tertiary education and its cultural evolution in different contexts.
